Join our fight for families impacted by America's opioid crisis

Right now, in state and federal courts, there are legal arguments being made about who is responsible for the costs of America's prescription opioid addiction and who pays.

The Opioid Justice Team is a group of healthcare and legal professionals insisting that special consideration must be given to the opioid-dependent children born to opioid-using moms.

Without your voices being represented at the table, it is possible that these children and their caregivers will never see assistance for the life-long costs they will incur, through no fault of their own.

That's because powerful corporate interests would like lump sums to be paid to hospitals and government entities, in the hopes they will take care of the needs of these children. Unfortunately, this is the same "remediation" model used in the tobacco-industry settlements where studies have documented that money targeted to the children of tobacco users and their medical problems were never received by these innocent victims. The most extensive media investigation of this issue is by Propublica, titled How Wall Street Tobacco Deals Left States with Billions in Toxic Debt.

The problems caused by children born to opioid-dependent moms are real. Without your voice, these children and their caregivers may never receive the financial and social supports needed for the life-long challenges they will face.

We cannot let their life-long needs be ignored. That's why we need you to join our fight.
